

Bachelor of Arts: Political Science
Bachelor of Arts: Political Science with Paralegal Studies
Minor: Political Science

Political Science is the study of government and explores the origins, historical developments and function of government and political power. Political Science majors study American government, political theory, international relations, and comparative politics among their core courses and are exposed to all the subfields of the discipline.

A degree in Political Science is ideal for students who wish to pursue entrance into graduate programs or law schools and/or careers in public affairs, business, education and the media. Employers recommend one or more internships to be successful and competitive when entering this field.
