Certificate: Autism Endorsement

The Special Education major prepares students to meet the educational, social, emotional and vocational needs of infants, children, and youth with disabilities. The KU Special Education Department offers certification and non-certification programs in two areas: teaching students or working with individuals with special needs and teaching students or working with individuals who are Visually Impaired (VI). Each program provides a unique series of course work and field-based activities designed to prepare graduates to meet the demands of a challenging and fulfilling career. Certification Candidates in these programs are also eligible for certification in elementary, middle level or secondary education.
